However, new participating countries will be granted the use of their military rifles, without telescope and bipod, for the duration of two years only. For security reasons, competitors equipped in this manner will be squatted on either side of the range.

5.2.2 Shooting - Regulations for 300m Standard Rifle 3 Positions

This program takes place according to the ISSF Rules and Regulations in force for the 300m Standard Rifle 3 positions program.

5.2.3 Shooting - Regulations for 300m Military Rapid Fire Rifle

5.2.3.1 Program

The 300m Military Rapid Fire Rifle-Program consists of a shooting event of 60 competition-shots divided into 3 positions of 20 shots each. Each position consists of 2 series of 10 shots and is fired in the following order:

Prone: 2 series of 10 shots each. Each series in 1 minute 30 seconds.

Standing: 2 series of 10 shots each. Each series in 2 minutes.

Kneeling: 2 series of 10 shots each. Each series in 2 minutes.

Before the competition begins, an unlimited number of sighting shots may be fired within a time limit of 12 minutes. The sighting shots can be fired in any position as long as the changing of positions does not disturb another competitor. After each sighting shot the marker must show the value and the position of the hit on the target. The competitor can observe the hits with the telescope.

Competitors will be given a minimum of 10 minutes between each position.

For each 10 shots (one series), a new target must be provided. Each series starts with the command:

"Get ready for the position (prone, standing, kneeling)", "Load your rifle".

After approximately one minute, the Range Officer will command: "Attention, three-two-one-fire". On "fire" all the targets are hoisted simultaneously to the firing position. The firing will cease with a 3 seconds long whistle tone. During the whistling (1 minute 27 seconds to 1 minute 30 seconds in prone position or 1 minute 57 seconds to 2 minutes in the other two positions), the competitors may fire. Each shot fired after the end of the 3 seconds whistling will be recorded as zero. At the same time the targets will be lowered.

Each series is fired with the odd number targets first, followed by the even number targets. Refire will be shot at the end of each position or the shooter may be resquadded at the decision of the Technical Jury. After each series shot in prone, standing and kneeling position, the targets are shown during 1 (one) minute to the competitor to allow him to observe the hits. The competitor is allowed to use a telescope during the entire competition. Before the command "fire" is given, the weapons are held in the ready position, i.e. the weapon is not shouldered.

5.2.3.2 In the Marking Pit

a. Sighting shots

As soon as the marker observes that his target is hit, he lowers the target, covers the hole with a transparent paster and overlays a contrasting paster to mark the position of the last shot. Then he hoists the target and indicates the position of the hit and shows the value. When all sighting shots have been fired after 12 minutes, the marker removes the sighting target from the frame and puts on the first competition target.

b. Competition series

When the pit receives the signal "fire" from the Range Officer, all targets are raised simultaneously. After receiving the signal "Stop firing", all targets are lowered immediately. After all targets have been visually controlled and the results have been written on the proper form, the targets are raised for 1 minute so that the competitor can see his target. The target is then removed and taken to the Classification Committee. The targets for the next series are placed on the frame and the Range Officer is informed that the pit is ready for the next series.

5.2.3.3 Penalties

a. If a competition is fired with fixed targets and a competitor should fire one or more shots between the command "Load your rifle" and "fire" or after the signal "Stop firing" has been given, he will lose the same number of the best hits on his target.

b. If a competitor fires one or more shots on a range with movable targets between the command "Load your rifle" and "fire", the shots are counted as part of his 10 shots series.

- c. If a competitor moves his rifle from the ready position to the firing position before the command "fire", he will first receive a warning. If repeated, he will lose 2 points from the score of that series.
- d. If a competitor has shot on a wrong target, he will only be credited with the hits found on his own target.
- e. The competitor, whose target has been crossfired by another shooter, will be notified of the high and the low score on his target. He then is allowed to accept either the low score or refire. The refire series will be conducted at the end of each position. The results of this new shooting cannot be either superior to the 10 best hits or inferior to the 10 lowest hits of the cancelled series.
- f. If a competitor fires more than 10 shots during a series, he will lose the same number of the best hits even if the target should not have more than 10 hits.

5.2.3.4 Malfunctions

If a competitor during the firing time should have malfunctions, the ISSF Rules and Regulations for the Standard Pistol Event are applicable.

Repeating or completing a series due to a malfunction must be permitted twice during the 60 shot Military-Rapid-Fire-Programme.

The final ranking for the medal-positions in case of a tie is done by a shoot-off according to ISSF-rules. Rankings below the lowest medal-position is done by the “Count-Back”-method according to the ISSF rules. Ties with perfect scores will not be broken but will share first place with the same rank. The next rank is then appropriately numbered. The family names must be listed according to the Latin alphabet.

5.5.6.2 Team Ranking

If two (2) or more teams have the same scores, ranking must be decided by the combined score of the team members in the last round of targets, then by the next to the last round, etc. until the tie is broken.

5.6 QUALIFICATION for the INDIVIDUAL COMPETITIONS in RIFLE and PISTOL

5.6.1 At the preliminary conference, the organiser must inform about the number of firing points that will be in use in the individual competitions. (In general, all available firing points should be used, except for 2 (left, right) that will be in reserve). Based on this information, the rules for qualification for the individual competitions will be:

a. Not less than 80% of the number of competitors shall be qualified by their results in the team competition:

- 60% shall be qualified directly by their ranking in their respectively relays.
- 20% shall be qualified by scoring independent of relays.

b. The remaining firing positions (not more than 20% of the competitors) will be filled up in accordance to scoring among nations not having competitors qualified for the individual competition as referred in item (a). Only one participant from each of these nations can qualify.

If there is no need for all of the 20% nationality places, the rest of final places are qualified by highest results.

5.6.2 In order to ensure equal conditions for the best nations in the team competitions, the best 10 nations of the last shooting military world championship shall have the same number of shooters in each relay. (For example in a 3-relay match: 1-1-2).

5.7 REGULATIONS for CHAMPIONSHIPS HELD on ELECTRONIC SHOOTING RANGES

5.7.2 300m Military Rapid Fire Rifle

When shooting at fixed targets, firing will cease with a 3 seconds long whistling tone. During the whistling (1 minute 27 seconds to 1 minute 30 seconds or 1 minute 57 seconds to 2 minutes), the competitor may fire. Thereupon, the shooter will be shown the strip "protocol of results" for examination for 1 minute or the results will be shown in sequences on his monitor.

If it is determined that 10 shots were fired for record and less than 10 shots are registered in the computer, then the competitor must repeat his series at the end of the position during the refire series. The results of this new shooting will be counted as the competitors score, but cannot be inferior to the score on the cancelled series. If the competitor has to refire more than one time, then the score cannot be inferior to the first cancelled series.
